

Updated by Omar Faruque on November 27, 2023: Anime creators are adding more layers and depth to their power systems, moving away from simplistic power-level concepts. This includes more detailed ...

Each and every anime has its own power systems, and it is difficult to find a flaw in those because the limitations are mostly due to characters rather than the power system itself. For example, let's look at two of the most ...

Conceptually I thought it was well-made and interesting, yet how it was executed in the series was somewhat lacking imo. In particular the concepts were often introduced in lengthy info-dumps and then barely ended up being mentioned again afterwards, and certain key battles ended up relying way too much on raw power level rather than on how the combatants made creative use of ...

While the definitive usage of Chakra almost vanished by the start of Naruto Shippuden, it is still a great power system. 1. Nen - Hunter x Hunter. The best power system unofficially in all Shonen anime is undoubtedly Nen. It follows all the top three rules of a good and efficient system, i.e., creativity, power, and limits.

I think my Top 3 would be the Magic system in Mahouka Koukou with its Pushions and Psions. Then there's Magi with its Djinn System and the Sacred Palace. Then there's Nurarihyon No Mago, they have two major power systems, one of which is Onmyoudo which involves summoning familiars and using enchanted weapons.

There's a reason why we always gravitate to the Shonen side of the animation genre. It's the power fantasy, the sheer unbridled joy of seeing characters engage in new forms of combat that was born from their desire to become stronger. Over the years, a ton of systems have been invented for various anime series and their manga source material. Sometimes wild, ...
