Not one member of this forum has had to replace the IMA (Integrated Motor Assist or Hybrid) battery on a CR-Z yet (Litz replaced one in a first generation Insight). This is a gas engine (ICE in today's speak) car with a Hybrid (IMA) system to extend range. It can't and won't run 100% electric.

The change from a Nickel-metal hybrid to a Lithium Ion battery has been accompanied by an increase in power from 14 PS (10 kW) to 20 PS (15 kW). Working in unison, the Integrated Motor Assist (IMA) hybrid system now delivers a combined output of 137 PS at 6600 rpm (+13 PS) and 190 Nm of torque (+16 Nm).

Let me repeat, No owner on this forum has had to replace a CR-Z IMA battery yet. The common replacement parts are no particular order the IMA fan, the DC to DC converter, the outside door handles (they are plastic), the under hood battery (Car has no alternator) and the ABS module. Lots of postings on this forum about all of this!

Yours will be the first case of a replacement IMA battery in a CR-Z. But as they get older this will occur more and more. Thank you, vehicle was outside of warranty sadly Very Sad situation. I hope you find a reasonable solution.
